

Supervisors accept $13.3 million budget

BY TRACI BONNEY

The board of supervisors accepted a proposed county budget Thursday of $13.3 million for fiscal year 1993.

The new budget, which is $919,608 more than the FY '92 budget, includes $38,000 more for the Sheriff's Department and $2,500 for the South Mississippi Exchange Club's Family-Child Center. The board has until mid-September to make any additions or subtractions to the budget, and until September 30 to adopt the budget in its final form.

At least one funding request will be considered by the supervisors before they adopt the final budget. Treva Smart with the South Mississippi Epilepsy Foundation asked that the board consider funding SMEF for $4,000 so she can offer more services in Hancock County to people with epilepsy and their families.

SMEF offers several services to those with epilepsy, as well as a number of educational programs at all age levels. The organization currently serves Pearl River County and Pass Christian, and offers some assistance in Hancock County, although so far Smart has provided local services as a volunteer.

The board took Smart's request under advisement.

Dr. Ted Alexander, president of Pearl River

Community College, also requested funds from the supervisors.

He asked that the board consider increasing its funding to help support the college in expansions he said are necessary to accommodate growth over the years.

The board told Alexander they would consider his request. Later in the meeting, they voted to give the community college the same amount of funds they gave last year, with no increases.

Cruisin' with Bayou Caddy

Renovation plans take shape for newly purchased cruise ship

BY TRACI BONNEY

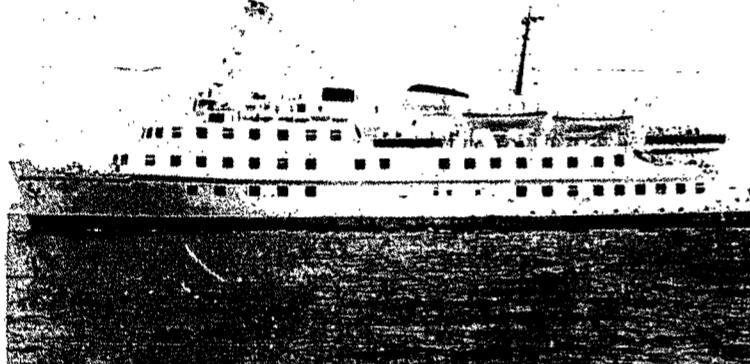

Would you like to go to Antigua? Monte Carlo? Panama? The Bahamas?

Well, hold on for a few months, and they'll come to you. Bayou Caddy Inc., which plans to open a dockside casino in Lakeshore by the end of the year, has purchased the cruise ship Southern Elegance. The ship may be renamed or may remain nameless. The name "Southern Elegance" was sold when the ship was, but not with the Bahamas.

The ship will be refurbished, most likely at Gulf Coast Fabrication in Port Bienville Industrial Park, as a permanently moored gaming vessel. Baxter said he has met with GCF offi-

Hancock Republicans to help welcome President

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Members of the Hancock County Republican Executive Committee are involved in the planning of President and Mrs. George Bush's visit to Gulfport next Friday.

Nell Frisbie, Robert Kane and Larry Smith are coordinating transportation for the August 21 motorcade, which will take dignitaries from the airport to Jones Park at Gulfport's Small Craft Harbor.

The President is scheduled to arrive at the park around noon, said Frisbie. He will be joined by Vice President Dan Quayle and his wife, Marilyn.

"This visit is a real compliment to South Mississippi," said Frisbie. "In the last presidential election, the Fifth District gave President Bush his second highest vote count. He is coming to say 'Thank you.'

"There are so few times that the President and Vice-President appear together. It is such an honor."

Others scheduled to attend include Senator Trent Lott, Governor Kirk Fordice, Lt. Governor Eddie Briggs and possibly Senator Thad Cochran.

Approximately 16-17 vehicles and drivers will be secured by the Hancock County Republicans.

cials, who have tentatively agreed to do the renovation work. The negotiations were not yet finalized as of Wednesday morning.

He briefly outlined the proposed design of the casino, which is to have a nautical theme. The Panama Deck, which is where customers will enter the ship, will be the main casino area. The Monte Carlo and Antigua decks will have some gaming devices, mainly slot machines. Lounges will be on all three decks.

The Bahamas deck, located below the Panama, will house offices and may be the site of a game room for children and those not old enough to gamble legally. Baxter said this is being considered because Bayou Caddy officials recognize that much of their clientele will probably come from nearby Buccaneer Park, and the younger people will need to have something to do while the adults are in the casino.

Baxter said the company has

Teachers become students

By T. H. (Doc) Toups
Bay-Waveland school teachers participated in an educational experience of their own Thursday, as they studied new techniques for teaching chemistry at North Bay Elementary school.

In preparation for the upcoming school year, they participated in the "Chemistry for Elementary Teachers" program sponsored by the Department of Chemistry/Biochemistry, University of Southern Mississippi.

Approximately 95 kindergarten through sixth grade teachers and administrators became students for the day as they went over experiments involving such diverse subjects as fluid dynamics and bearing friction.

At the kindergarten and first grade level, the projects (such as a banana race car) tended to be simple, but visually dramatic. At the higher grades, experiments were more sophisticated, but no less interesting.

Teachers from Waveland Elementary School, North Bay Elementary School and Bay Middle School spent six hours honing their chemistry teaching skills.

Echo subscription prices to increase

Annual subscription prices for The Sea Coast Echo will increase by $5 on Sept. 1, in an announcement made by Ellis C. Cuevas, publisher.

The Sept. 1 annual rates for home delivery in Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Diamondhead will be $25; mail subscriptions in Hancock County, $25; elsewhere in Mississippi and for Louisiana $37.50; and other states $42.50.

Current subscribers can renew or extend their subscription for one year during the month of August at the old prices, Cuevas said.

There will be no change in the single copy sale price of 35¢, at newsstands and from vending machines.

An advertisement with a coupon appears elsewhere in this issue of The Echo.

FAA work continues at air park

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission continues to prepare Stennis Air Park for limited passenger service, in spite of the lack of a signed contract with Casino Magic.

During Monday's meeting, Airport committee chairman Pete Beebe questioned FAA 139 compliance expenditures when no set contract for charter services exists.

Executive director Harold "Buz" Olsen said general manager Al Kokesch is shopping for the best airport facility to handle their needs, but unless Stennis Air Park meets 139 compliance, it will not even be considered.

He added, most of the work presently being done is to meet with basic FAA certification, such as striping and additional signs. Formulation of a contract with the local fire districts was the next step in 139 compliance, something Olsen stated to be a future necessity for air park expansion.

Beebe interjected the commission has spent $10,000 to hire a consultant to complete and file the 139 compliance application.

Olsen said eventually the commission would have to sit down and decide how they wished to proceed with the air park facility, commenting, "Maintenance will be the greatest cost involved."

The commission approved the newly established FAA high priority docket.

Commission engineer Carlos Cordon recommended the acceptance of a $64,855 bid from the Gottfried Corporation of Covington, La. and Gulfport for work on the Port Bienville water system.

Cordon said the work will include replacement of one 40-hp motor with two 60-hp motors, giving the system the pumping reliability needed should a failure occur. "Where there is one pump now, there will be two alternating pumps," Cordon explained.

He added, the new motors will also improve the water pressure.

The commission accepted the bid from Gottfried.

Students at Bay Catholic face grief as school opens

Special to the Echo

When school opens tomorrow, Bay Catholic Elementary School students will have an unfamiliar — and uncomfortable — new subject to face: grief.

The recent violent death of third grade teacher Cindy Acker will be uppermost in the minds of many returning students, said Principal Ann Allen. Acker taught at Bay Catholic for 16 years and was loved by parents and students alike.

Since such circumstances have prevents school's "opening as usual," Allen said, plans have been made to ease the upset and grief facing the children at school.

A Memorial Mass will be offered at 1 p.m. Monday, Aug. 24, at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church. While the Mass is primarily for the children, Allen said, the public is invited.

"The purpose of the Mass is to give the children an opportunity to say goodbye, to give closure to this tragedy," she added. Because August 24 would have been Acker's 39th birthday, the date holds special significance.

Grief counseling will also be available for students from school counselor Fee Genin and from outside sources. BCE's teaching staff has had grief counseling as part of staff development training before the start of school, Allen said.

Family therapist Dr. K. Edwin Graham will speak to parents about helping children with grief Thursday, Aug. 20, 7 p.m., in the BCE cafeteria. The public is invited, but parents are asked not to bring children younger than seventh-grade age.

Graham, a certified psychotherapist, has extensive work experience with death, dying and grief. He has counseled at other Coast schools following similar tragedies. His practice includes individual, family and marriage therapy.

Parents, Graham said, will learn to deal with their own grief as they strive to help their children cope.

"People are more open to learning when they're trying to help someone else," he commented. "Adults might not want to admit they want help, but will learn for themselves as well as for their children."

Graham will hold a question and answer session after his presentation.

Bay Catholic also has established the Cindy Lizzana Acker Memorial Fund, which will be used to defray the cost of education at BCE, according to Allen. The monies will be distributed either as a one-time memorial gift or as an ongoing scholarship fund, depending on how much is collected in the fund.

Contributions to the fund, or to Bay Catholic's Perpetual Trust, an endowment for the school, may be made through the school office at 301 S. Second Street, Bay St. Louis.

Bay City Council discusses budgets

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis City Council began discussing department budgets for the 1993 fiscal year last week after a short recess meeting.

In the recess meeting, the Council unanimously voted to declare a piece of property on Citizen Street a menace and advertise for bids for demolition of the partially burned structure and removal from the property of debris and derelict vehicles; to approve travel for a city employee; and to amend the personnel policy so that as of July 1, all public works department employees must have a class B (commercial) driver's license.

In the workshop that followed, the Council discussed budget needs with Fire Chief Andrew Lizana and public works director Ron Vanney.

The Council also scheduled meetings with the police and administration departments for Wednesday. At the end of the month and the beginning of September, each city district will hold public meetings, followed by a general public hearing September 8. The Council will meet September 15 to approve the budget.

Waveland wastewater district approves contract for study

BY TRACI BONNEY
The board of the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District voted recently to hire Duke Levy and Associates to study options for possible future expansion of sewer service in the county.

Eddie Favre, mayor of Bay St. Louis and chairman of the management district's board, said the board is looking at the existing facilities and projected future growth.

"It will most likely be a couple of years, at least, before we start any expansion," he said. "We just want to go ahead now and start looking at the possibilities, to get a head start on it."

Peterson said that at 4:32 a.m. that day, Donna L. Bergeron, 38, of Waveland, was driving east on Lower Bay Road when Howard, traveling west, hit Bergeron's vehicle as they came around a curve in the road.

According to a report from Deputy Allen James, the impact caused both vehicles to go into the ditch and nearby woods. Howard reportedly left his vehicle and fled into the woods, but was arrested shortly afterward.

Peterson stated there were no reports of injuries.

Howard was released on a $500 bond.

Working together, we can beat drugs

The community meeting last Monday night is a start in the right direction to address the problems of drug sales and use.

Drug problems have probably reached every county or parish in our nation, so we are not the only ones facing difficulties.

Only when citizens join hands with enforcement agencies to eliminate drug problems in a community, can this be done.

A second meeting is planned Monday at 7 p.m., St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church, Necaise Avenue, Bay St. Louis.

All concerned citizens of Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Hancock County, Diamondhead and other communities are invited to attend.

Your input at this meeting is needed and encouraged. Your help is needed, too. No matter how many law enforcement agents a community has, its efforts will not be successful without the cooperation and support of its citizens.

If you feel there is a drug or crime problem in your area, you need to let your officers know.

A hotline is available in Hancock County and Bay St. Louis for residents to report crimes. Waveland asks citizens to report crime activities to the police department at their regular telephone number.

Callers need not give their names. The two hotline numbers are unmanned, and are checked for messages frequently. A little tip to police can many times solve a crime.

The Hancock County hotline number is 255-6246 and Bay St. Louis 255-6234; and in Waveland call 467-3669.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

One can expect an increase in traffic in the mornings around 7:30 a.m. and afternoons around 3 p.m.

This will be because of the opening of school and some parents will be transporting their children to and from school.

Many students will be all over the place, some walking or riding their bicycles to school and others waiting to catch a bus.

All this means that motorists need to be extremely careful whenever they are in areas where students may be.

Reduced speed limits will also be in effect around schools.

One of my gripes is to see a group on bicycles traveling in one direction and when approached by an auto, some will move to the right side of the road while others to the left.

If memory serves me correctly, everyone needs to stay on the right side of the road.

Frequently I see persons on a bicycle running stop signs. A person on a bike should stop just like an auto at all stop signs.

I am hoping everyone will have a safe year at school, and students, please observe all traffic rules.

Drug traffic non-existent at corner OST, Washington

Dear Editor,

I feel outraged that the recent story, "Community leaders declare war on drugs," in your Thursday, Aug. 13 edition, implicated the corner of Old Spanish Trail and Washington Avenue as drug trafficking area.

There is no drug trafficking at Old Spanish Trail and Washington Avenue.

As a business owner at this location, I assure you no drug traffic is permitted on or near my premises.

I enjoy a working relationship with the Bay St. Louis Police Department, which assists me in keeping this corner drug free.

I wish the people will in fighting this drug problem, which does exist in other area.

I will gladly assist in any way with the elimination of drugs from our community, but I wish for the people to know they are safe. Any time they visit the Bay St. Louis location of Old Spanish Trail and Washington Avenue.

Let's make the Bay a better place to live

Dear Editor:

Appreciated your editorial in Thursday, August 13 Echo. Re: a party dumping a mess of fish waste near the mouth of the Jourdan River. Bay St. Louis is a truly beautiful little town although it does need a few improvements.

I hope we can get some things done before the gambling crowds come rolling in and it gets even harder to get the needed changes done.

First of all is the half-witted slob who dump their trash on our roads and streets, as well as all over the beaches. About the only real remedy I can suggest is to get a large supply of tar and feathers and some rails! I'll bet you won't have to use much!

Another complaint I have is the narrow "wagon trail" streets with no shoulders, no sidewalks and lots of big potholes to damage expensive cars, knock out alignment and bust shocks, tires, and ball joints.

Also, those big concrete and gravel patches which do the same job on helpless citizens' cars—also, why is it the street crews always put pipelines with manhole covers under the pavement instead of under the shoulders.

This appears to be the age-old "make-work" system (scheme?), because it never fails: The very next day, even before the tarmac dries, there suddenly appears another work crew tearing a big hole in the road! More use for the above-noted remedy!

Now, for the drug and crime situation which is extremely serious. I believe we should do here in Mississippi as is currently being done in Michigan: all drug dealers (dealers in death—death of innocents as well as whole families!) should be rounded up and immediately sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole or release of any kind.

These dealers aren't afraid of big fines of hundreds of thousands dollars. They have so much cash readily available that they usually pay big fines and laugh at the system.

After a few discover that their freedom is gone forever the others will stay away from this state! Sure, we'll have to build more and bigger and stronger prisons, but this will be far cheaper than the high cost in lives and money of these scum.

Perhaps we'll even have to fight the ACLU as Michigan did. But the Supreme Court passed on such treatment for these vicious criminals in that state.

Personally I feel that anyone caught red-handed in a serious violent crime has already forfeited all civil rights, period!

Let's work toward making our town a pleasant and safe community where our children can play openly and we can walk our streets at any hour of day or night without fear!

Thank you,
Paul D. Gilbert

He is a seasoned sailor, having plied the seas for 30 years, and in an interview, modestly disclaimed any credit for his perilous job other than doing his small part in the great war, although on his last voyage, his ship was torpedoed and he was compelled to remain in icy waters hanging unto some of the ship's debris for hours before being picked up by a lifeboat and remaining several days on an iceberg in the ocean. However, Leatherwood stated that in the first World War, he was also on a torpedoed vessel on two occasions and this was not exactly a new experience.

Blues Fest slated at Coliseum

The second Mississippi Gulf Coast Blues Festival will be Sept. 5 at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum. It is produced by the Coliseum and the Mississippi Gulf Coast Blues Commission, a non-profit organization that supports and promotes blues music on the Coast.

The festival will feature legendary blues performers and local talent, along with arts and crafts and a variety of ethnic and traditional food.

Some of last year's favorite performers are returning for a second year at the festival, including Blues Boy Willie, Jerry Fisher and the Music Company, and Clarence Carter.

Several other well-known blues acts new to the festival will also perform. A total of 17 acts are scheduled for stages inside and outside the Coliseum.

Some changes have been made this year, including the addition of a third stage. One stage will be in the Coliseum at 388-8010.

arena and two will be outside.

Coliseum assistant director Matt McDonnell said the extra stage will eliminate set-up time between acts. "As one band is playing, another band will be setting up on the other stage. All the audience will have to do is turn to face the active stage. It will be non-stop music," he said.

Last year's festival drew more than 5,000 people.

Festival organizers encourage visitors to bring lawn chairs or blankets, however coolers are not allowed on the festival grounds, and food must be purchased from festival vendors.

For more information contact the Mississippi Coast Coliseum at 388-8010.

Lunch to go for whole family

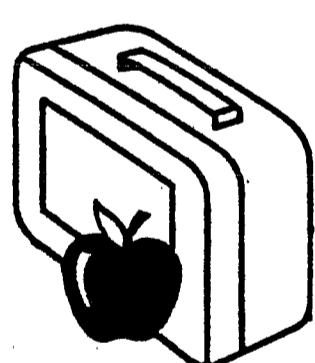

Pleasing the whole family at mealtime can be a difficult task. All the family members have their own likes and dislikes and their reasons for choosing certain foods.

Kids like foods that are fun. Dad wants something that is hearty and filling to get him through the afternoon. Mom, usually, is the one looking for a lighter lunch, whether she's eating at the kitchen counter or at her desk between meetings.

Put all of these needs together, along with the fact that at times all want to take a lunch from home, it isn't easy to find one entrée that all will like. However, Cheddar Snack Spread may just be the solution.

It's a creamy spread with a bit of tang to the bite and is easily made with just four ingredients most folks keep on hand. Once it's made, there are a variety of options for its use.

Cater to the kids by spreading a frankfurter bun with butter and chili sauce; add 1/4 cup of cheese spread and top with slices of leftover frankfurter. It's fun, filling and nourishing. With it, pack a piece of fruit and several oatmeal cookies.

Dad's deli corned beef gets layered on rye. Top one slice with mustard and corned beef, the other with a heaping portion of Cheddar Snack Spread. Add a few rings of onion for extra snap.

For mom, lettuce is used as a stand-in for bread. Portion out the spread on leaves of greens and roll up snugly, snugly counting the calories saved.

As an added bonus, Cheddar Snack Spread freezes well.

Sandwiches can be made ahead when time allows and tucked into the freezer.

CHEDDAR SNACK SPREAD

makes 1 1/2 cups
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (at room temperature)

1/2 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish

1/2 teaspoon finely grated onion

Combine all ingredients in a small mixer bowl. Beat until well combined.

Cheese-Frank: Spread split frankfurter bun with butter. Spread chili sauce on top half. Cover bottom half with one-fourth cup cheese spread; arrange frankfurter slices on top. Close. May be frozen.

Cheese-Corned Beef: Butter 2 slices rye bread. Spread one slice with one-fourth cup cheese spread. Spread mustard on second side; top with thin slices of corned beef and onion rings. Close. May be frozen but omit onion.

Lettuce Roll-Ups: Spread 1 to 2 tablespoons cheese spread on a leaf of lettuce (Boston, Leaf of Bibb works best) and roll up. Chill. Allow 2 to 3 lettuce roll-ups per person.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

As the temperature soars and the meat budget dips these sultry late summer days, we resort to that good old standby, the "burger" or hamburger steak, as well as other such dishes.

As I charbroil a couple of hamburgers, I'll spare a thought for the hardy souls who turned out 10,000 hamburger patties last weekend in the little town of Seymour, Wis.; that's a mountain of burgers, for sure!

The occasion was the fourth annual Hamburger Festival in Seymour, which claims that the world's first burger was fried there 107 years ago, at the County Fair in Seymour in 1885. At this year's fest there was even a hamburger hurling contest, which Jeff Braun, former University of Wisconsin shot-put champion, hurling a hamburger bun 180 feet, 4 inches, a record! There was a hamburger-eating contest, which Dave Layton setting a record, wolfing down 4 burgers in 2 minutes and 1 second!

Thousands came out to enjoy the fun—and the 10,000 free burgers! As to the hamburger, some sources maintain that it originated at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904 with the burger encased in a bun. Whatever the start, it was a big step for the meat patty which German immigrants had introduced to America in the 19th century and which soon became a boon to those who could not afford steaks or roasts.

In those early days, the hamburger was called Hamburg steak after the German city of that name, whose sailors had learned of the Hamburg while trading with Russia's Baltic Provinces. These seafarers introduced their countrymen to the delicacy, said to have originated in the Middle Ages, when the stalwart Russians relished rosy "beef tartare"—raw beef, highly seasoned and well-minced, served in mounds.

Some years later, some cook or other, as cooks will, decided that smooth patties of the shredded beef were neater and tastier than the uneven mounds; and still another cook decided that the meat was better when cooked. By the start of this century, Hamburg steak had added a syllable and become Hamburger.

From roadside snack to full meal, perhaps a bit fancy meal, the hamburger's versatility has grown through the years. There are, of course, these would-be-gourmets who scoff at the lowly hamburger; but, I ask you, is there anything quicker and more tasty when you're truly hungry?

We all have our variations on the theme, of course. One of my favorite ways with the burger is to marinate the shaped and seasoned patties in a little burgundy wine or Italian-style salad dressing for an hour or so.

Then, I melt a tablespoon of margarine in a skillet (or spray the skillet with cooking spray) and add two tablespoons of the marinade. I pan broil the hamburger, then remove them from the pan. I add more marinade, swirling it about in the pan to take up the meat drippings and the "bits and burnings" in the skillet. Place the burgers on bun halves or warmed French bread slices and pour the marinade over all.

And, if you want a really regal burger, try this, from New York's famed "21" restaurant—the "21 Club." Here's:

HAMBURGER "21".
The "21" technique combines sauteeing and broiling. The recipe was given to me long years ago, on my first trip to New York City. As a young couple on a slim budget, we set aside most of our money for the theatre, and ventured into top restaurants at lunchtime usually.

We had ordered the hamburger "21" from the extensive menu (without prices listed.) The burgers were quite "pricey" but wholly tasty! To make 2 burger in the "21" style, you'll need a pound of chopped beef (preferably from the short ribs or chuck steak).

Add no salt or pepper, nothing but a stalk of celery, cooked and well-drained, then cut into pieces and chopped fine with a knife—no strings, if you please! And not cooked mushy, either! Mix celery and meat together lightly—with sopping wet hands, and shape the burgers into ovals just about 1-inch thick.

"Saute on one side, then on the other" the instructions continue, on a very heavy hot pan or griddle, cooking 2 minutes per side. Just before serving, splash 1 tablespoon of sauce Espagnole (or heated beef gravy; may use canned beef gravy) on each burger. Set under the broiler for 2 or 3 minutes longer. And, pour on a spoonful of barely browned butter."

I didn't get the recipe for "21's" Sauce Maison—but here's my version: Stir a tablespoon of dry English mustard to a paste with warm water, and let this stand for several minutes. Add 1/2 cup ketchup and stir together for a tasty condiment to further embellish the burger.

P. S. Sauce Espagnole is simply a brown sauce, a part of demi-glace for beef, also tasty with ham and game.

Seafood microwave recipes beat summer heat

Summer's the time to play in the great outdoors. And since two-thirds of the earth's surface is covered with water, you may be spending part of your summer in the pool, at the beach or in a boat.

What could be more appropriate to serve for summertime meals than seafood from the earth's waters, cooked on the waves—microwaves, that is.

Seafood cooked with waves is tender and moist. And you don't need added fat to keep it from sticking to the cooking utensils. So whether your microwave is in your boat, vacation home or year-round home, you can enjoy great seafood from the deep.

While preparing your seafood during warm weather months, make sure to store and microwave it properly for continued safety. After purchasing seafood from reputable stores or markets, refrigerate it promptly and cook it within a day or two.

Once cooked, don't cross contaminate seafood by letting it come in contact with raw foods. Use cooked seafood within three or four days. If using frozen raw seafood, defrost it naturally by placing it in the refrigerator for a day or two; never leave fish out at room temperature.

It's possible to micro-defrost seafood 6 to 8 minutes per pound on medium-low (30 percent), however, rotate it frequently and don't let it begin to "cook" at the edges. A brief standing time afterwards should complete the thawing.

When microwaving seafood, here are guidelines to keep in mind:

Make sure seafood is completely thawed before microwaving so it will cook evenly.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The regular monthly meeting of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion, Auxiliary Unit 139, was Monday, Aug. 10, at the Post home.

President Susan Piazza opened the meeting; color-bearers Roslyn Weathers and Hazel Wohlschlegel advanced the colors. Chaplain Ursula Favre read the opening prayers and Piazza requested a moment of silent prayer for sick, bereaved and deceased auxiliary members. The Pledge of Allegiance and Preamble followed.

Secretary Jeannette Ladner called the roll of officers and read the last meeting's minutes, which were accepted. Treasurer Bobbie Tomlinson reported on the Unit's financial status.

The committees reported on their activities during the month. Second vice president Shirley Clemons outlines her plans as VAVS chairman for the veterans and for Bonco parties throughout the year.

She also reminded the auxiliary members to begin thinking of contributions they can make to the veterans' gift shop in December since Christmas is only a few months away.

Ursula Favre reported the sending of get-well and sympathy cards to various auxiliary members. Bobbie Tomlinson reported on membership on behalf of first vice president Mattie North. Susan Piazza introduced new members Janelle Necaise, Gertrude Duthu, Mary Odom and Vicki Overal.

Community chairman Roslyn Weathers and Oris Planchard spoke of their many donation trips to the Veterans' Clothing Depot and the women's shelter. They asked the auxiliary members to think of those who benefit from these services when they clean out their closets.

New committee chairmen were announced. They are: Americanism, Janelle Necaise; Emergency, Oris Planchard and Roslyn Weathers; Community Service, Roslyn Weathers; Children and Youth, Hazel Wohlschlegel; Constitution and By-laws, Margaret Prevou; Education, Beatrice Ladner and Anna Gayaut; Junior Auxiliary, Michelle Ellis; Music, Lillian Alvarez; National Security, Gertrude Duthu; Past Presidents Parley, Janet Aime; Poppy Program, Michelle Ellis; Public Relations, Roslyn Weathers and Lou Wilkerson; VA Rehab, Shirley Clemons; Bingo, Vicki Overal; Hostesses, Hazel Breland. Some vacancies remain in the committee chairmen, but will soon be filled.

Genevieve Cole thanked the auxiliary members for their help with Bingo.

The Chaplain read the closing prayers; the colors were retired; the president read the final words and the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were then served.

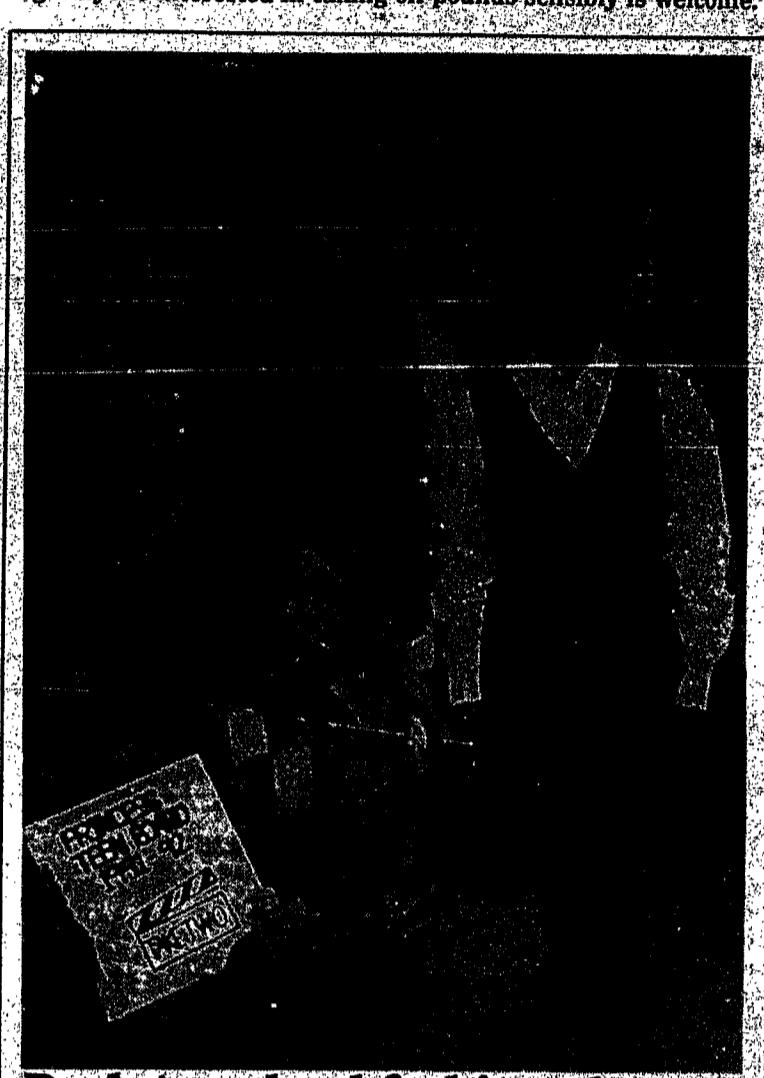

The ice cream and cake party for the veterans in Gulfport will be Tuesday, Aug. 25, at 2 p.m.

Reflections On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Letter from a former fetus

What is all this talk about women loving babies and being willing to do anything for them? I don't understand that, because I am a baby although I am still a fetus, and almost fifty percent of those same women do not like me.

How do I know they don't like me? Unfortunately, the case is all too clear. They are willing to remove me from their womb like trash because of some physical or emotional inconvenience or financial shortfall, or almost any flimsy excuse.

They pretend not to hate me, because they can rationalize their deadly action into portraying a concern for quality of life and for the preservation of personal freedom of choice by declaring that it is they, not God, who rule their bodies.

Don't they realize that they owe their very existence to their own mother's refusal to pursue the phantom of convenience or to exercise some fancied right over her own body?

Carried out to its logical extension, their philosophy of aborting unwanted fetuses would undoubtedly have eliminated many of them ere they emerged from the womb.

Yes, in the cases of more people than we would like to admit, their very right and ability to protest stem from the fact that no one made a concerted effort to eliminate a fetus which would have become an unwanted child.

Many fanatic pro-choice protesters, female and male alike, are spewing forth the bile of feticide, not knowing that they themselves were candidates for the same, having been spared only by the mercy of some compassionate fellow human or the serendipity of circumstances.

How do I, an insignificant former fetus, know all this? Because after I was aborted I joined the heavenly host of aborted fetuses who went straight to their eternal home at the moment of their untimely destruction here on earth.

Every year, our celestial numbers are swelled by more than a million and a half. While there is some triumph in this, almost as in the cases of the ancient Christian martyrs in Rome, there is likewise a fearsome disgrace in that our transition to the heavenly kingdom is accomplished through murder.

It hurts us former fetuses to see how comfortable and secure people can be in their discussions of the beginning of life, the rights of women over their bodies, and the comparison of the future of the fetus to the present of the other.

They should be comfortable and secure indeed, because they are already born and they can speak up for their own rights. We former fetuses have no rights whatever, since many of you do not consider us persons until we see the light of day.

Of the helpless, we are the most helpless. However, we have sense enough to see that it is sheer sophistry to try to determine the beginning of life. From our first heartbeat, call us not a mass of tissue, but a living human being.

Do not be confused by the term person. We are living human beings, incomplete in many ways, but rapidly developing in our bodies and minds.

And remember that, although our bodies are incomplete, our souls are complete from the first second. You see, there is no such thing as an incomplete soul.

I may be a former fetus, but I have one huge advantage over you. You are still struggling to complete your sojourn. Though I got here through evil means, I am in paradise.

Isaiah 43:14
Lord, how my heart is filled with thanksgiving as I remember Your Promise. Amen.

Don't copy the behavior and customs of this world, but be a new and different person with a fresh newness in all you do and think. Then you will learn from your own experience how His ways will really satisfy you.

Romans 12:22

May the world not mold me today but may I be so strong as to help mold the world. Amen.

According to Billy Nussbaum, chairman, the Special Benefit for Alvin Walsh Sr., held last Saturday at the VFW, Lakeshore was a huge success. Mr. Nussbaum and the Walsh family would like to sincerely thank everyone who contributed and participated in any way to the success of this benefit.

A sincere thank you to Msgr. Johnson who filled in for Father Kelly the past two weekends. The first name chosen will be announced by CYO members the end of September.

YOUR HOUSE OF WORSHIP CAN HELP SOLVE YOUR PROBLEMS

The first step in solving a problem is to tell someone about it.
— John Peter Flynn

Life brings problems to all of us; to ourselves, to some close relative, or to a dear friend. These can involve health, finances, human relationships and many other things, and we must decide what if anything we can do about them. If ordinary common sense cannot provide the answer, we should seek the appropriate source of professional help. However, we should also seek guidance at our House of Worship. Attend it regularly if you are not already doing so, and talk to your clergyman. You will feel the comfort of his advice and his prayers for you, reminding you that God is watching over you and will help you or the other person either overcome those problems or learn to cope with them. You will then learn for yourself that this is the greatest reward of faith: a better life.

Is there pension protection when filing for bankruptcy?

By Janet K. Lukens
Area consumer money management specialist

Are those filing for bankruptcy protection able to keep their retirement money free from creditor claims?

The answer is somewhat dependent on where an individual is located. Various federal Circuit Courts of Appeal have reached different decisions in this matter.

Hard economic times have brought about increasing numbers of bankruptcies. Last year 12,783 bankruptcies were filed in Mississippi, up from 11,228 the previous year. With additional layoffs from some local businesses and industries, I am regularly speaking with families facing financial difficulties.

One factor that causes uncertainty in the area of bankruptcy and retirement accounts is the tax-favored status of retirement plans. The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) stipulates that such tax-favored retirement assets are not assignable. If they are assigned to the trustee in order to satisfy the claims of creditors, they can be disqualified from their tax-favored status.

The U.S. bankruptcy law is not completely clear as to whether such laws as ERISA and the Internal Revenue Code may limit the bankruptcy court's ability to reach these assets. Some courts have indicated that the tax qualified plans are available while others have indicated the opposite.

The U.S. Supreme Court has determined to decide this issue such that a uniform rule can be applied. With a Supreme Court ruling, all areas of the country will have one rule to follow.

Currently in Mississippi, 100 percent of "qualified" pension assets are exempted from the claims of creditors according to Gulfport attorney Robin Alfred-Midecal. An exception to this exemption may apply to some pension, Keogh and Individual Retirement Account funds which were contributed within one year of the bankruptcy filing, says Alfred-Midecal.

Building retirement funds is critical to future financial security. Workers who are forced to relocate in the job market and deal with periods of unemployment, have difficulty building a retirement nest egg that can provide for their families in retirement years.

It is critical that those who face such challenges know the rights provided through local and national legislation. With uniform national legislation on this issue, individuals and creditors will be better able to determine where they stand related to protection for retirement funds.

Hancock Bank expands Waveland Hwy. 90 branch

To provide more services and greater convenience to customers in Waveland, Hancock Bank is increasing the size of its Highway 90 Waveland Branch. Estimated completion date is the end of October.

The additional 380 feet includes four drive through canopied lanes for banking, a drive through automated teller machine (ATM); a lobby doubled in size and a larger vault housing nearly 60 safe deposit boxes.

The branch staff now consists of four tellers and a branch supervisor and offers a full menu of banking services including checking and savings accounts, IRAs, trust services, and loan applications.

Division manager L. Clinton

Necaise stated, "Since the acquisition of Peoples Federal Savings, Hancock Bank has planned this expansion. We are very happy to be in the Waveland area, and with this expansion, we will be able to provide our customers with the best possible service."

Presenting the top 10 choices

Cafeteria lunches are usually hot, are prepared according to U.S. Department of Agriculture dietary guidelines, and economically have the best buy in town—three factors that don't impress children in the least.

School-age children either like to eat in the cafeteria or they don't. If they choose no to take advantage of school-prepared meals, then parents have to try to pack a nutritionally-balanced, economical lunch. It's possible, and with a little planning, it's feasible.

Nelda Starks, extension nutrition education specialist at Mississippi State University, said nutrition and food safety are the most important considerations for packing school lunches.

"Use a variety of foods from the major food groups, and look for items that do not require refrigeration," Starks said.

Topping her list of safe and nutritious lunch items are:

The old standby—peanut butter and jelly on whole grain bread.

Prepared fruits or canned fruits.

Low-fat cookies such as graham crackers, waffle cookies or fig bars.

Canned individual serving puddings that do not require refrigeration.

Boxed fruit juices.

Soups or beef stew packed in a thermos.

Popcorn and cereal-based snack mixes.

Cheese and crackers.

Dried fruit.

Nuts.

Among the least nutritional items, Starks lists:

Donuts.

Cream-filled pastries or high-calorie packaged snacks.

Chips.

Soft drinks such as colas or sweetened fruit drinks.

The items on these lists aren't inclusive, but they are some of the most popular items that appear in home-packed lunches," Starks said.

"We can expand the good list to include other items such as sliced meat sandwiches and yogurt only when refrigeration is available, or when the item can be safely frozen and eaten soon after it thaws."

"Help ensure food safety by using insulated lunch boxes and use an ice pack or a frozen fruit juice box to keep other items cool," Starks said.
